VIRTUAL REALITY AND MOTION SICKNESS:

Persons subject to motion sickness also run the risk of feeling nauseous when using a VR headset. These visitors should pay particular attention to this warning. Much like the sensation felt after disembarking from a cruise ship, symptoms from exposure to virtual reality headsets may persist or become more intense a few hours after the experience.

We recommend that visitors close their eyes or take a break as soon as they notice symptoms, and do not hesitate to consult attendants in case of discomfort.

The Phi Centre is accessible for those with reduced mobility. At the moment of buying your ticket, please contact us so we may accommodate you properly. You can contact us by email at boxoffice@phi-centre.com or by phone at 514-225-0525.
